CHARLEY WAS ABANDONED.

HIS AUNT TOOK HIM TO CESTRAL PARK AND LEFT HIM THERE. He Is a Non of Charles J. Toxton Who Married Another Woman than the Boy's Mather - Texter Induced His Wife to Care for Him, but She Got Tired,

Little Charley made his second visit to Jefferson Market Court yesterday. His real name is Charles J. Texter. He is the two-year-old bor who was found wandering in Central Park near the lake on Oct. 5, and who, after being taken to Police Headquarters, was handed over to the care of the Gerry society by Justice White, to the intense disgust of half a dozen women who wanted to adopt him. Yesterday Charley wore the same little cap and plaid coat in which he appeared before. Near him stood his father, William Texter, 24 years old, of 207 Wyckoff street, Brooklyn, who is a collector by exon street, probable, who is a collector for a laundry, and his aunt. Mrs. Libble Mussot, 14 years old, of 1 Duffield street, Brooklyn. Both were prisoners on a charge of having the deserted boy. Officers Shultes and Smith of the Gerry society have been at work on the case since Charley was found. They learned that three years ago William Texter met Annie Rogers. a servant in a house in Flatbuch avenue, and became intimate with her. Two years ago a boy was born. In the mean time Texter had merried another girl. Annie llogers went before the Commissioners of Charities in Brooklyn and made a complaint against Texter, who agreed to pay $2.50 a week for the support of the child, who was put in charge of a professional nurse. Texter took the boy from the nurse four months ago and brought it to

"This is Mrs. Swartz's child." said he. paming a woman who owns a stationary store of fed Carlton avenue. "and I want you to care for it. Mrs. Swartz is ill and is in the hospital, and wants us to take the child until she recovers she will pay us $2 a week for our trouble."

Mrs. Texter took the same care with the boy as she did with her own eighteen-months old bot. It was she who bought Charley's little hat and coat. As time went on and Mrs. Swartz did not send for the boy, Mrs. Texter became tired of him, and told her husband swarts did not sond for the boy, Mrs. Texter became tred of him, and told her husband Charley must go.

This put Texter in a predicament. On Oct. 4 he went to see his married sister, Mrs. Mussot and talked the matter over with her. As a result of that conference Texter took Charley from the house to the Brooklyn Bridge, where Mrs. Mussot met them. She then took the boy to tentral Park, and left him. What happened to him afterward has been told afready.

Little tharley was put on the bar in front of Justice Flyan yesterday, and the dirst thing he did after looking at the Justice critically was to reach for that gentleman's whiskers. He couldn't get hold of them, and became so outspokenly melancholy that he had to be removed from the court room to the back room, where he stayed until the case was decided.

Mrs. Mussot fold Justice Ryan that she thought the boy would be found and taken care of. She said she consented to take him over here and abandon high to help her prother. When she was told that the penalty for the crime was seven years in State prison she fainted. She was held in $500 bail for examination. Texter, who admitted heing the boy's father and having asked Mrs. Mussot to get rid of him, was held in $2,000 bail. Mrs. Texter, and having asked Mrs. Mussot to get rid of him, was held in $2,000 bail. Mrs. Texter, a pretty and very young looking woman, was in court. She was very much affected, the proton of the court of the court of the case was to divorce.

Mr. Bates, Tour House Has Been Robbed The house of J. N. Bates, 64 Remsen street. Brooklyn, was entered some time Saturday hight by burgiars. Nearly every room in the house was runsacked. The family is away, and it is not known what was stolen.

The purpose of the Bond A Mortgage Guarante Co., which has been organized in conjunction with the Title Guarantee & Trust Co., and at present has offices with that company, is to provide for those unacquainted with real estate values, a perfectly safe inrestment. These who desire absolute security of principal and the certainty of a moderate interest can find in guaranteed mortgages an escape from the uncertainties of railway and kindred investments. The company was organized because it was believed that the investing public was very tired of its experiavestor knows absolutely nothing, and in the manipu lation of which, too frequently, a few make fortunes out of the losses of the many. A mortgage on real caate has this to commend it, that a man's security cannot be reorganized away from him, or so juggled with that he cannot tell whether it is worth anything or not. There is not much chance for speculation in mort-gages, but this company was not organized to promote speculation. It hopes to aid conservate investors by widing them with choice guaranteed city m It does not aim so much to serve experts in real estate values or those with ample facilities for getting good mortgages, as those who know little about real estate values and who have poor facilities for getting go mortgages. THE REIGN OF PINANCIAL QUIET.

Perhaps it is because I have drifted ashore. as it were, out of the moving current of business, but certainly it seems to me that a remarkable quiet, at present, pervades the financial world. The operators on the Stock Exchange do their best, from time to time, to ereate little ripples of excitement in special securities, but they do not make them last long nor spread far. Like the calm, bright autumn weather which we have so long been enjoying, and for which I trust the millions of people who participated in the Columbus celebration were duly thankful, financial affairs go on, just now, tranquilly, from day, the world over, and give no day to indication of an impending storm. What surprises the moneyed magnates of Wall street may have in store for us. I do not know. for although I am on speaking terms with most of them, they do not take me into their confidence, as they apparently do other writers for the press, and, indeed, if they were to inform me of their plans. I should decline to communicate them to the public. lest a subsequent change of purpose on their part should place me in an embarrassing position. In spite of the newspapers I think that the themselves are sensitive in the same way. I know that old Commodore Vanderbilt. he was once represented by an intimate friend for not taking him into a very profitable opera-tion, replied: "Why. Sammy, if I had told you what I was going to do and then hadn't done it, you would have said I was vacil-lating; and I don't like to have people say I'm vacillating."

My readers must therefore content themselves with the comments which I am able to make upon facts generally known and the inferences I draw from them, without looking to me for the revelation of personal secrets or for confident predictions of future events. At present I can only repeat that everything is quiet and that no disturbance is in sight. The crisis in the maintenance of gold navments. which was recently threatened by the foreign demand for the metal, and by the constant in crease of our paper money under the act of July, 1890, has been postponed. Austria has got all the gold she is likely to draw from us for the present, and will supply horself hereafter from European stocks, while the crop movement is absorbing our surplus currency and thus temporarily averting danger from that source. The free sliver agitation has been pretty effectually killed, and whether Mr. Cleveland is elected President or Mr. Harrison, it has no chance of a resurrection, since both of these gentlemen are pledged to veto any bill that may be passed by Congress in its behalf. The tariff question is of equally little practical importance. Whichever party wins the day no radical reduction of the present scale of duties is to be expected. The vested interests which would be destroyed by a literal enforcement of the free trade principle enunciated in the Democratic platform are so enormous that no politician will dare take the responsibility of even attempting the task. Of course if the Republicans succeed, the tariff will remain substantially unchanged. Either way, therefore, the manufacturing industry of the country is safe from harm. That our citizens are generally impressed with the bolief that the result of the Presidential election. whatever it may be, will have no bad effect upon finance and trade is evident from the tameness of the campaign. Among all my acquaintances I do not know of one who expresses solleitude about the result of it, and even the betting men are idle from the want of any indication of the drift of public opinion in either direction. The Republicans concode that Mr. Cleveland is an honest man and will faithfully administer the duties of his second term of office as he did those of his first. The Democrats, in turn, concede that Mr. Harrison is able and upright and will not let his party do any mischief, it it should return to power. What intrigues and secret negotiations may be lurking beneath this smooth surface of things I do not know. of course, and election day may astonish us all by its revelations. New York State ought naturally to go Democratic, and if it does Mr. Cleveland will be elected; but the free-trade bugbear and the pertinacity with which a few unwise writers and speakers insist on making him the champion of State bank currency may turn the scale against him. The careless remark of a preacher about "rum. Romanism. and rebellion" lost the State to Mr. Blaine in 1884 when the disaffected Democrats under John Kelly's leadership had surely given it to him, and this fool talk in favor of reviving wildcat money may serve Mr. Cleveland the same bad turn by diverting from him just the few votes that would otherwise elect him.

The condition of business throughout the country may, I think, fairly be called good. s usual there are many dissatisfied grumblers, and it cannot be denied that the rampant speculation which prevailed just before the Baring collapse has died away, leaving numerous unfortunate schemers with unsuccessful projects on their hands and obligations which they are unable to meet. But that in this part of the country at least, people are prosperous, the experience of the past week, right here in this city, abundantly demonstrates. The bare fact that so many hundreds of thousands of both residents and visitors could afford the time and the money they de voted to the enjoyment of the amusements attending the Columbus celebration, shows that they at least are not suffer ing from want. The prices paid for sents to view the parades alone prove that those who paid them had more money than they required for their absolute necessities. saw, moreover, numbers of plainly dressed mon and women giving twenty-five cents aplees for boxes and barrels to stand upon. and I am told that the business was a thriving one at every point where the processions passed. Take it altogether, the expenditures upon our celebration for decorations, illumi nations, parades, platforms, transportation, and refreshments are an overwhelming refu tation of the charge so often made by domagogues that our people are sinking steadily into degradation and poverty, and that the most heroic measures are necessary to prevent them from going completely to ruin.

I admit that I have no right to judge of the condition of the entire nation by what I see around me here in New York. It may be, posalbly, that this city is prosperous when other parts of the country suffer, just as the deepest neit of a nond after a long drought is full of water, while the shallower portions are dry. Against this I have only to urge the glowing descriptions, illustrated with pictures, which I find in newspapers and periodicals, of the prosperity of this, that, and the other Western and Southern town or city, of which even the name is a novelty to me. and the enterprises which come into Wall street for capital, backed with details of the wealth that lies await ing the bold investor in the schemes offered him. Even the strikes of the past twelve months prove, by their very costliness, the comfortable condition of the men engaged in them. If these men were, as some assert, goad ed to frenzy by insufficient wages, they could not, without any wages at all, long hold out. The people who, I fancy, are suffering the nost in the present condition of finance and trade, and with whom I sincerely sympathize. are those who ran in debt for farms and other property during the era of high prices, and who are now struggling to pay for them unde the reign of low prices. For, I think, it cannot be successfully disputed that the prices o agricultural productions, metals (except gold), and staple goods are generally lower than they were ten years ago, and, certainly, they are lower in this country than they were before the resumption of specie payments in 1870. Nor is it to be denied that the maintenance of the gold standard is the chief cause of the fall n prices since the resumption, and that the doption of a silver standard would raise prices. and thus lighten the burdens of debtors. But the misfortune of one set of citizens in this respect is to the benefit of another. The earners of wages and the holders of money bligations, both large and small, profit by the greater quantity of commodities which the dollar buys as much as the sellers lose. It must be remembered, too, that only a few of what are called the creditor class are people of large means. A newspaper of this city recently compiled with great care a list of throughout the country worth a million of dollars and more apiece, and they only numbered about 4.000 altogether. This, in a population of 60,000,000, is but one in 15,000, or if we count none but the 10,000,000 voters of the country, one in 2,000. Of these 4,000, besides, many are doing business with borrowed money, and are therefore not creditors, but debtors; so that it is a great mistake to say that the gold standard redounds to the profit of the very rich alone.

Debtors must also remember that they ran in debt of their own free will, and if they have been disappointed in the result of the operation they have no right to call upon the rest of their fellow citizens to pay the cost of helping them out of the scrape. In many cases the properly they bought on credit has risen in value in spits of the depression of prices of commodities, and where it has not done this, or even has fallen, it is a chance which they took when they entered into the transaction. It looks now, too, as if bottom had been touched, and that prices in general were not going any lower than they have been at times during the past five years. At all events, everything indicates that the dispute over the standard of value has been settled by the triumph of gold, and is no longer a disturbing element in business. MATTHEW MARSHALL

VENDORS STATEMENT.

The above twenty-three companies and firms (there being but four other companies engaged in the bush ness) manufacture and sell about 85 per cent. of the entire output of type in the United States. The largest of these companies has been in existence, and has its ledgers complete, since 1790, and nearly all have been long established and uniformly prosperous.

A bigh class of skilled labor is accounted to produce the plant, and it would require the combined labor of all the available talent to Europe and America for many years to duplicate one of the larger plants represented in this Company.

Tariff changes cannot affect the business unfavorably, as a large and increasing export business is now being done with Europe and South America. The superiority of American type has been acknowledged in a very practical way in the English market.

All the books and accounts have been examined by Mesare, Hart Brothers, Tibbets & Co., chartered Accountants of New York and London, who report the average annual net profits for the last three years to be $659,496, the lowest for any one year being 560:,495.

The expenses during the last three years have been excessive. The cutting in prices has been great, and commissions to middlemen much larger than usual. The printing trade generally has received no benefit from this, and many have expressed themselves as in favor of the consolidation. It will be seen, however, from the above statement that in spite of these drawbacks the average earnings have been more than double the amount required for It will be readily believed that the bringing together of so many and large interests has required the constant effort of many months. The capitalization is believed to be as conservative as that of any enterprise which has been offered to the public. The character and stability of the business, the amount of assets, the actual profits in the past, and the probable profits under one management are the grounds of this belief. The consolidated company will retain all the skilled labor now employed. Concentration of business will save expenses and rent of a large number of duplicate branch offices. Commissions to middlemen will be stactically done away with. Specimen books have been issued by each foundry at frequent intervals, costing one foundry over $20,000 for a single issue. A very large raving will be

Every new design produced involve: a large outlay. At present each founder endeavors to keep pace Eastern Munnger ... G. FREDERICK JORDAN with the other, thus duplicating plant at great expense. The advantages of the new company in this respect are evident.
